Foster a child

Could you make a difference?

Foster carers make a huge difference to the lives of vulnerable children and young people in Cardiff, giving them the care and support they need for a happy and successful future.

There are many reasons why a child may need a foster carer. Their parents may be unwell, having family problems, or they may have been neglected or abused. Whatever has happened, it isn't their fault.

We desperately need more carers to provide the much needed love and support these children deserve.

Why foster with Cardiff Council?

We have been praised by our carers for the fantastic support we give.

We know that being a foster carer can be challenging at times, which is why we are on hand to support you every step of the way. There are also fantastic training opportunities too, each carer will get their own tailored personal development plan and a personal mentor.

We like to make sure that a Cardiff child is placed with a Cardiff carer. Once you have been assessed and approved we promise to find you a suitable placement, as quickly as possible.

We also offer fostering allowances at competitive rates, so you can earn the equivalent of a full time wage and have one of the most rewarding careers possible!

Could I foster?

Each looked after child in Cardiff is unique, just like you, and they need carers from all different types of backgrounds.

We warmly welcome prospective foster carers:

- from all cultures, languages and religions.
- who already have children and those who do not have children.
- who may be disabled
- from single men or single women
- who are a couple in stable and enduring relationship and who are committed together to care for a child, whether or not they are married or in a civil partnership

What is important is your commitment to providing a solid and stable environment for a child, sibling group or young person to grow and feel valued.

What our foster carers are saying…

We asked our amazing foster carers to give up their time and help us recruit more carers just like them. Here is just a snapshot of what they said about fostering for Cardiff Council:

Lisa

"I have really enjoyed being a foster carer. I feel I have made a difference to the lives of young people by giving them love, security and a sense of self confidence and esteem. I hope it gives them a good start in life, to take into adulthood.

It is such a good feeling when a child that you have looked after succeeds in life, you can't help but think 'I helped them to achieve something they may not have'."

Angie & Lennie

"I have been a foster carer for 10 years and met and married Lennie five years ago. We have been with Cardiff Council Fostering Service for over a year now. The Cardiff Fostering Service has a high professional standard and offers great support and training opportunities.

We are approved to look after three young people up to the age of 18. We get huge satisfaction in being part of a team that help children develop, grow and enjoy life in a safe and stable environment, allowing them to achieve their very best.

We have a lot of experience, working with sibling groups, teenagers, asylum seekers, day care and overnight respite for children under two. While fostering we have faced a lot of challenges - we have reflected on our practices, gained new skills and adapted our care to each individual. It is important to be flexible, consistent and open to help and advice.

The feeling of being able to help a child or teenager have a more stable life, achieve their potential and gain new experiences is very rewarding. We would certainly recommend fostering with Cardiff Council."

Nazia & Abu

"Providing a home and care for a child at a young age is very important, it has an effect on the way a child grows up.

We feel we have made a great difference to the early life of the child we looked after, and hope we have helped them develop socially in a positive way.

We would certainly recommend fostering for Cardiff Council to anyone who loves making a difference to a child's life, by giving them the love and shelter they really need.

Council sets budget 2014

THE Council has set its budget for 2014/15 after a period of extensive consultation, against a backdrop of unprecedented funding reductions and significant increase in demand for services.

Where possible the Council has taken on board the response to the consultation which showed a desire to protect some services, such as youth and play services to allow alternative delivery arrangements that do not need council funding to be explored.

As a result Council Tax will increase by 3.97 per cent next year which is equivalent to an extra 71p per week at Band D.

The administration's Corporate Plan (see page 3) was also agreed alongside the Budget and outlines the main policy priorities as well as a need to reform the way the Council operates to ensure the future delivery of important public services. These priorities are:

- securing growth in the local economy to provide jobs and opportunities for local people;
- equipping the local population with knowledge and skills to maximise their potential;
- making sure that nobody gets left behind as we renew our commitment to those least able to help themselves.

The 2014/15 Council Budget has resulted in savings of £48.6 million, the vast majority of which have come from; reducing management costs and back office functions; reducing external expenditure, identifying alternative funding; exploring more cost effective ways of delivering services and increasing income.

Just £7.5 million of the savings will come from changes to service delivery.

Budgets for schools have, where possible, been protected and the Council has met the Welsh Government's protection level of 0.9 per cent which equates to £1.78 million alongside a further increase of £1.7 million due to the growing number of pupils in Cardiff schools.

Areas such as Health and Social Care, Children's Services and Environment have all received significant additional growth, totalling around £14.7 million to meet increasing demands and pressures while funding has also been allocated to third sector groups to deliver locally agreed neighbourhood priorities.

The decrease in capital funding has continued with a reduction of 35 per cent since 2010/11 which means there has been careful consideration of where to invest with a key focus on the city's economy.

Council Leader, Heather Joyce, said: "We have had no choice but to suggest some very difficult things in order to balance the budget and keep on providing our priorities: education, protecting the most vulnerable and increasing opportunities to attract jobs and investment.

"But the Council simply can't keep doing everything and that is we wanted to hear what people thought of our proposals before setting the budget.

"As a result we decided to continue funding play and youth services while we examine different ways of providing these activities in the future. This means we've had to increase council tax more than we wanted but things have changed massively in the last year and we have had to make some very tough choices."

Cabinet Member for Finance and Economic Development, Councillor Russell Goodway, added: "The responses to the consultation gave us some comfort there is support for the priorities we have identified but we are under no illusion that we have had to suggest things which are incredibly difficult. We are also aware that an increase in Council Tax is very hard for people but we have tried to keep that reduction as low as we can, equating as it does to just over 70p per week in order to protect a number of services.

"But the reality is that the public sector continues to face a prolonged period of financial austerity with an estimated additional reduction in spend of at least £92 million needed over the next three years to meet further reductions and pressures."

Metro moves forward

CARDIFF Council's Cabinet has endorsed a vision that will deliver a world class transport network for the capital and a full public consultation will take place when the various options are considered.

The 'Cardiff Capital Region Metro' will ensure that the Capital Region can expand as predicted, in line with the Local Development Plan, increasing economic growth, improving accessibility for commuters and relieving pressure on Cardiff's transport network.

The 'Metro' involves a range of measures improving access to Cardiff from the Merthyr, Rhymney, Rhondda, and Neath Valleys. As part of this transformation, Cardiff Council's role will focus on the 'North West Transport Corridor', improving links from Cardiff Bay to the city centre; developing proposals for a new transport link from Fairwater through to Creigiau and lastly to potentially establish an improved transport route to Llantrisant and Pontyclun in Rhondda Cynon Taff.

Councillor Graham Hinchey, Cabinet Member for Strategic Planning and Transport, said: "I have been made aware of misleading information which has been circulated in the wards of Fairwater and Canton and I would like to reassure residents and businesses in these areas that no decision has been made on the route of the proposed metro link and a full public consultation will take place when anything is put forward.

"The vision of the Regional Metro system is forward thinking and looks to address the need for a growing capital city. The new network looks to embrace electrification of existing networks, new technology such as Tram-Train and Bus Rapid Transit to make public transport attractive and a viable option for commuters."

The metro will be funded through external revenue including grants from Europe, the Welsh Government, UK Government and revenue streams from transport enforcement.

Cardiff sets out priorities in Corporate Plan 2014- 2017

CARDIFF Council, like all local authorities, has a responsibility to set out its priorities and how it will achieve them. The Council's Corporate Plan therefore outlines aspirations for the city, the way the Council plans to achieve them and how it will measure progress.

The Corporate Plan has been developed alongside the Council's budget for 2014/2015 to make sure that resources are in place to focus on the issues that most matter.

The Council needs to meet a budget shortfall of over £100m over the next three years, during a time when there are more pressures on services. As a result the Council must focus on a smaller number of key issues and these priorities are:

- Economic development as the engine for growth and jobs;
- Education and skills for people of all ages to fulfil their potential and be prepared for employment;
- Supporting vulnerable adults, children and young people in times of austerity.

These priorities were supported during the Council's budget priorities consultation last December when key groups such as Cardiff Youth Council, the Cardiff 50+ forum and a number of other stakeholders from the city's diverse communities aired their views. These events, along with the online budget consultation, have ensured as many people as possible could have their say on the future of the city, and public feedback has helped shape the development of the budget and the Corporate Plan.

These are difficult times and the Council cannot keep doing what it currently does. The Council is determined to meet these challenges in a way that re-establishes Cardiff as a successful European City which delivers for local communities. The Corporate Plan provides a roadmap for how this can be achieved whilst achieving what matters most to people in Cardiff.

The Corporate Plan is available on the Council's homepage, and an accessible summary version of the document is also available. Hard copies can be found in Community Hubs across the city.

Leader steps down for family reasons

COUNCIL Leader Heather Joyce has resigned as Leader of the Council to devote more time to her family and her husband who is unwell.

Councillor Joyce will continue to represent the Llanrumney ward but said that after delivering the Council's toughest budget in history, she now felt the time was right to step aside.

Councillor Joyce became Leader of the Labour Group in 2011 and said that while the role was not one that she aspired to, she felt that a great deal had been achieved in the past two years including the return of business confidence to the city with some £1.5bn of development in the pipeline and Cardiff becoming the first Council in Wales to pay the Living Wage to staff.

Councillor Joyce said: "I have been honoured to be the Leader of Cardiff Council and have been privileged to work with many talented and dedicated people during my time in office and would like to them thank them all for the support they have given me.

"We have achieved a lot over the past two years and this has been an incredibly difficult decision but my husband is unwell and I have felt for a while that I need to devote more of my time to supporting him during a difficult period as well as turning my attention back towards my family and serving the people of Llanrumney.

"I am particularly proud that we became the first Council in Wales to pay the Living Wage to staff and as those who know me best will appreciate, my sole motivation in politics has been doing what is right for the city's most disadvantaged communities and I look forward to continuing this work as a backbench councillor. I have no doubt that Cardiff will continue to succeed and I look forward to representing Llanrumney and supporting my successor as Leader of the Council."

Crackdown on cold callers

CARDIFF Council is working with the local community to find out if they want their area to become a 'no cold calling zone'.

'Cold calling' by individuals or businesses can lead to problems for residents, whether it is simply an annoyance, being put under pressure to buy goods or services, or financial loss by buying sub-standard services. There are also increasing concerns that illegal money lenders may be targeting vulnerable people by touting for business.

In the latest crackdown, the residents of the Hollybush Estate in Whitchurch met Cabinet Member for Communities, Neighbourhood Regeneration and Social Justice, Councillor Lynda Thorne, and local councillors to receive advice on the scheme as well as leaflets and stickers to show their support that 'cold callers' will no longer be tolerated in this area.

Councillor Thorne said: "It is important for residents to empower themselves with information, so they feel safe in their home and know their rights, so when unscrupulous rogue traders try to take advantage, they are fully informed and can take appropriate action. The signs that have been put in the area should send a clear message that cold calling isn't wanted in this area.

"Residents just need to politely say no and close the door to those offering their services from the doorstep. Often those who are targeted are elderly or vulnerable so it is very important that we get the message out to these individuals so they do not get duped by these people. Under current arrangements if residents would like a visit from a Trading Standards Officer, help will be provided in 30 minutes."

Councillors spent time at the Hollybush Estate talking through the scheme with residents and providing contact details so the Council can take prompt action if the need arises.

Local councillor for Whitchurch, Jonathan Evans, said: "Through the consultation carried out in this area, it was clear that the vast majority of those who responded wanted this scheme. All the local councillors received a few jokes that there was a certain irony about elected members visiting residents' properties, but everyone understood what we were doing, why we were there and we received positive feedback. I hope that the scheme does make a difference to people's lives."

Cold Calling Zones are now in place in parts of Canton, Heath, Rhiwbina, Leckwith, St Mellons, Gabalfa, Llanrumney, Whitchurch, Penylan, Cathays and Plasnewydd.

The collection during the service is in aid of the Friends of Velindre Hospital, Whitchurch, Cardiff. Refreshments will be available at the end of the service.

Emergency services training exercise

CARDIFF Harbour Authority is working in partnership with Cardiff Council, the Maritime and Coastguard Agency, South Wales Police, South Wales Fire and Rescue Service, The Welsh Ambulance Services (NHS) Trust, Royal National Lifeboat Institution and Cardiff and Vale University Health Board to test how all services would work together when responding to a major incident.

This will include activity on the water and land, including air assistance within Cardiff Harbour Limits.

Planning has been taking place for many months and the exercise will start at 10am on Wednesday, April 2. This time has been chosen to avoid the busy commuting times at Cogan Spur and the barrage.

This is a planned training exercise and is by no way to cause alarm to businesses and residents in Cardiff Bay. The Cardiff Bay Barrage will be closed for the duration of the exercise to all pedestrians and cyclists from 9.30am until 3pm.

Inspiring the next generation

SPORT Cardiff and Cardiff Blues have teamed up to encourage more children to take up rugby through a new and improved grassroots rugby programme.

As Cardiff celebrates being the 2014 European Capital of Sport, the Future Blues schools programme is being delivered to primary school children aged five to 11 across the city and uses tag rugby to increase and improve communication, cognitive skills and wellbeing.

Last year, over 5,200 children in Cardiff took part in the programme that was delivered by a team of fully accredited, energetic, passionate and ambitious coaches with a wealth of experience in coaching and childcare.

Cabinet Member for Sport, Leisure and Culture, Cllr Ramesh Patel, said: "During this exciting year for the city as European Capital of Sport, I am thrilled that youngsters across Cardiff will be inspired and encouraged to take up this fantastic sport which is ingrained in Cardiff's rich sporting heritage.

"We have successfully worked with Cardiff Blues for several years and the Future Blues initiative enables us to join together in reaching out to school children and provide them with the opportunity to engage in rugby. They will learn new skills in an enjoyable environment, with the aim that they will go on to join local clubs and take up the sport for life."

Rugby festivals involving all schools will also continue to be held each term as part of the Cardiff Games, a significant school sports programme which provides every child in Cardiff with the opportunity to participate in competitive sport. Established as part of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic legacy, the scheme creates a clear competition pathway from primary school and secondary school sport to community and club sport.

Cardiff Council introduce an area-wide 20mph speed limit in Roath and Cathays from March 31st.

The signs-only limit aims to:

- Promote slower speeds
- Encourage walking and cycling
- Reduce the risk of collisions

GO SAFE!

Speed significantly increases the chance of being injured in a collision.
The RoSPA calculates a 20% chance of fatal injury in a collision at 30mph, compared to a 2.5% chance at 20mph. [1]

There are fewer collisions in slower-moving traffic.
Researchers calculate a 2-7% reduction in all collisions for every 1mph reduction in average road speed [2]

Primary age children cannot accurately judge the speed of moving traffic travelling over 25mph. [3]

GO SLOW?

A big increase in journey time?
Not necessarily. During Bristol's 20mph pilot in 2009, monitoring showed the new limits has no effect on bus journey time. [4]

Why not?
The time we lose waiting at junctions, pedestrians crossings, or in traffic is just as important as our top speed in an urban environment. As such, urban journey times should not be significantly increased by 20mph limits. Living Streets estimate a 3-mile urban journey will take just 3 minutes longer at 20mph [5]

GO 20!

Fear of traffic is a major barrier that prevents many of us from cycling on the roads or from cycling altogether.

In fact, 65% of non-cyclists 'agreed' or 'strongly agreed' that "it is too dangerous for me to cycle on the roads" in 2013. [6]

Reducing the speed of traffic can be used as a powerful tool to encourage more of us to make our everyday journeys by bike.
